

About the Roaring Ridge Trail:

The Roaring Ridge Trail, a 0.5-mile trail with a small loop at the far end, is located in western Corinth, near Waits River village. Access was generously donated to the town for public use of the trail by Brad and Ann Caswell in 2010. The Vermont Department of Forests, Parks & Recreation supported signage for the trail. Please respect the landowner and the trail: hiking, skiing, bicycling, horse-back riding, etc. are all welcome but motorized vehicles of any kind are prohibited. Picnics are welcome, but fires and camping are not allowed.

The Roaring Ridge trail takes you on a short hike up through field and woods, into a cleared opening at approximately 2,000 feet in elevation – one of the highest points in Corinth – and with expansive views to the east (try naming all the mountains you can see!). This trail makes for a great snowshoe in the winter. Notice the bear claw marks on the top of the picnic table at the summit – it's not just people who apparently enjoy the vista!

Directions: From Route 25 heading west from East Corinth, just before Waits River village, take a left on Pike Hill Rd. Stay right at the split. After 0.5 miles, make a sharp right on Pike Hill Rd. West, which becomes Richardson Rd. Go about 1.3 miles to 4014 Richardson Rd. (the end of the passable road). Park in the turnaround at the end of the road and head straight up through the field to the treeline, and enter at the trail marker. The trail heads up to the lookout; continue back down the way you came, or take the shortcut down along the ridgeline to loop back to the main trail.

Corinth Conservation
Commission
c/o Town of Corinth
P.O. Box 461
Corinth, VT 05039

www.corinthvt.org

Corinth Conservation
Commission Trails

Roaring
Ridge
Trail

Roaring Ridge Trail Corinth, Vermont

